

Greater MN Legal Resources Cheat Sheet

Updated April 2017

Dear Community Colleague:

This “Legal Resources Cheat Sheet” is our attempt at identifying various Greater Minnesota legal resources, and providing the listings by service area (bankruptcy, family law, landlord/tenant, etc.). Additionally, a glossary of frequent abbreviations in the cheat sheet can be found in the right column. This list is not exhaustive, and we always recommend verifying program information by telephone or website.

The accompanying “pyramid” diagram aptly describes the challenges facing most low and moderate-income people with legal needs. The painful reality is that a large number of people cannot afford traditional full representation legal services (e.g. where an attorney handles a legal matter from start to finish). For example, in Hennepin County in 2012, neither party was represented by counsel in 95 percent of child custody cases, 83 percent of divorces and 66 percent of child support cases. Moreover, in 2012 there was only 1 legal services network attorney for every 4,453 eligible clients in Minnesota, compared to 1 private practice attorney for every 226 Minnesotans.

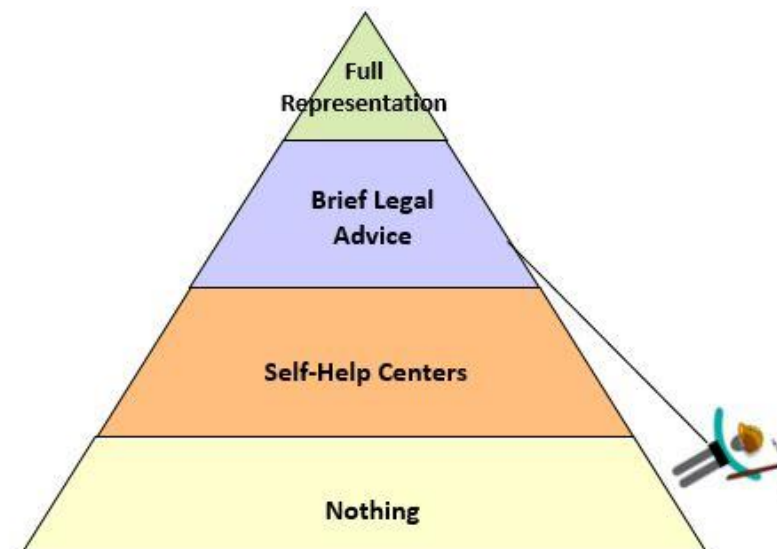

The mission of Call for Justice, LLC is to connect low-income people with existing legal resources in partnership with United Way 2-1-1 and others. Remember that “2-1-1” is a number for good legal referrals that may be coupled with good social services referrals. Call for Justice also facilitates collaborations that connect low-income people with legal resources; contact us if your organization seeks to form a sustaining relationship with lawyers or legal providers.

IMPORTANT: This list is not exhaustive, and additionally, some of the information contained therein may be inaccurate. We thus recommend verifying program information by telephone or website. Additionally, Call for Justice does not endorse any programs found on this list—this is merely a listing of services that are available.

If you provide low fee or pro bono services to low-income communities in Greater Minnesota and wish to be added to this compilation, please contact Lynn at Lynn.Hu@callforjustice.org with a description of your program and the qualifications for its addition. We will then follow up with you.
